LAODICEA LANGSTON

DAUGHTER OF SOLOMON LANGSTON

AND DAUGHTER OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

By Alice Thomsen

It is an honor to be a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution or Sons of the American Revolution. For anything this worthy you have to do your research and prove your ancestry. You begin with yourself and prove your ancestral line to the relative that was involved in the American Revolution. It may be a distant great-grandfather, great-uncle, great-cousin or great-aunt. For me it was a sixth great-grandfather and his daughter, my sixth great-aunt.

My sixth great-grandfather was Solomon Langston, born in 1732 at Isle of Wight, Virginia. He died in 1825 in Enoree, Laurens County, South Carolina. My sixth great-aunt was Laodicea “Dicey” Langston—born in 1766 at Granville, Laurens County, South Carolina and died in 1837 at Travelers Rest, Greenville County, South Carolina.

The true story I am about to relate is regarding the actions of my sixth great-aunt. The two incidents in this tale saved not only the life of her father on one occasion but also the life of her brother and fellow patriots on another. She performed both of these actions at a high risk of losing her own life.

The Langstons lived in an area that had a heavy concentration of British Loyalists (Tories), which included many Langston relatives. Therefore it was easy for Laodicea to gather information regarding the Tories’ plans while amongst family members and report this to the family members who were Patriots (Whigs). The Tories eventually became suspicious of such subterfuge.

A particular band of Loyalists were known as the “Bloody Scouts,” led by the notorious Bloody Bill Cunningham. He was noted for riding into a town and killing any Patriots.

On one occasion the Bloody Scouts broke into the home of my great-grandfather, Solomon Langston. They threatened to kill all the Langston men. However, only my grandfather and great-aunt, who was only about 15 at the time, were at home. Grandfather had been crippled by the war and could not do much to defend himself any longer. The Bloody Scouts held him at gunpoint and threatened to kill him. Aunt Laodicea (also known as “Dicey”) stepped in front of my grandfather, shielding him with her own body. She told the Bloody Scouts that they would have to kill her first. One of the Scouts was impressed by her bravery and stopped the assault, keeping Dicey and my grandfather from being killed. That Scout’s name was Thomas Springfield. (You will hear about him again shortly.)

On another occasion, Dicey overheard that a band of Bloody Scouts planned to attack the Elder Settlement at Little Eden, South Carolina, at dawn. Dicey set out on foot, during the middle of the night, crossing 20 miles of marshes and the swollen Enoree River, almost drowning, in order to give warning to her brother. Despite the many challenges she faced, she made it and was able to warn James. James and his men, in turn, were able to warn the Elder Settlement, and the Bloody Scouts arrived to a totally empty settlement.

After the American Revolution was over, one former Bloody Scout returned to the homestead of Solomon Langston. His name was Thomas Springfield. He eventually married Laodicea “Dicey” Langston. They had 22 children together.

To the credit of Laodicea Langston and her accomplishments are the following:

- She was accepted by the Daughters of the American Revolution as a Revolutionary herself. This was based on her merits alone and not those of her father—my sixth great-grandfather—Solomon Langston.
- She was written about in the books The Patriot Wore Petticoats and Angel and the Enemy, both by Marnie L. Pehrson
- A Carolinian song, “The Courage of Dicey Langston,” was composed about her. (Original author unknown)
A monument known as the Dicey Monument was erected in her honor at Travelers Rest, South Carolina. Its center stone was the hearthstone of Dicey’s home there.

Langston Charter Middle School, which was named in Dicey’s honor, opened in August 2005 in Greenville, South Carolina.

Song: The Courage of Dicey Langston

Her name was Dicey - just sixteen years
She was very brave - seem to have no fears
She stood up for freedom through her father's tears
In Laurens District, South Carolina

So many Tories and Loyalists around
Harassing the people - terrorizing the town
Someone had to stand up and not let them down
In Laurens District South Carolina

CHORUS:
Many stories of Dicey's been told
Of the lass so brave and so bold
Not a Tory or Loyalist could hold
A candle to Dicey Langston

So one day she overheard a plot that was cruel
With so many relatives it was easy to fool
They didn't know Dicey didn't go by their rules
In Laurens District, South Carolina

So she crossed The Enoree - an American Spy
To report to the Whigs anything that came by
By accident heard of a plot coming nigh
In Laurens District South Carolina

CHORUS

Bloody Bill Cunningham and his Scouts would soon ride
To kill off some Patriots in a town close by
She must warn her brother and others to hide
Away from Little Eden South Carolina

Dicey left in the night crossing marshes and streams
Twenty miles and a river swollen by recent rains
She made it to tell her dear brother James
In Little Eden, South Carolina

CHORUS

So she saved the Patriots lives on that day
She continued to spy Dicey would have her way
Even saved her father from the Tories they say
Near Travelers Rest, South Carolina

THE SWIHART FAMILY, IN AND OUT OF JACKSON COUNTY

by Anne Billeter

JCGL received a research request from Minnesota with payment of $15.00 for one hour’s research, requesting information about Bertha (Henningson) Swihart. In particular an obituary was requested, with the note that Bertha died 11 July 1925 and that she resided in Two Mile.

Unfortunately, Two Mile is not in Jackson County. It is in Coos County. Bertha is buried in Bandon, which is two miles south of Two Mile. The patron was informed that the obituary was probably available from the Coos Bay Family History Center and contact information was provided.

Some of the Swihart extended family lived in Jackson County. JCGL is rich in Jackson County research resources, and other genealogical resources are available at JCGL via eight subscription websites and other sites on the Internet.

Mary Ann Ropogle, age 24, and Henry Henningson, age 35 married 26 Jun 1881 in Cook Co., IL. [Ancestry.com. Cook County, Illinois, Marriages Index, 1871-1920, database online, from FHL film #1030118]

Nora Sina Henningsen was born 6 Apr 1882, Chicago, Cook, IL to Niels Henry Henningsen, age 38 and Mary Ann Replogle, age 26 on 6 Apr 1882. [Ancestry.com. Cook County, Illinois, Birth Certificates Index, 1871-1922, database online, from FHL film #1287822]

A record of Bertha’s birth was not found, but her gravestone [Findagrave.com, IOOF Cemetery, Bandon, OR] gives her birthdate as 10 May 1884.

1885: The family is residing at 1105 19th Street, Omaha, Douglas, NE on 8 June.

Henningson, H. 48 Head Tailor Denmark Denmark Denmark
Mary 48 Wife kpg hse IN OH PA
Louis 9 Son at sch WI Den WI
Wm 6 Son at sch IL Den WI
Nora 3 Dau IL Den IN Baby 1 Dau NE Den IN

I interpret this information to mean that Louis and Wm [William] were sons of Henry Henningson by a first wife, name unknown, who was born in Wisconsin. I believe “Baby” daughter is Bertha, as the age matches other sources, which give her birth as May 1884.

1900: Bertha is residing in Irving, Kandiyohi, MN, with her stepfather, mother, and two half-brothers.

Campbel, Charly Head Feb 1860 40 1st marr MN ME ME
Mary A. Wife Mar 1857 43 1st marr 2 ch, 2 liv IN OH PA
Fred Son Jul 1885 14 MN MN MN
Orren Son Feb 1887 13 MN MN MN
Henningson, Bertha Step-Dau May 1884 16 NE NE IN

This information is interpreted to mean that Mary (Repogle) Henningson has married Charly Campbel(l). Regardless of the fact that it says first marriage for both of them, each has been married before and Charly’s sons Fred and Orren are by his first wife, name unknown, who was born in MN.
Bertha M. Henningsen, born Omaha, NE, and David L. Swihart, born Marshal Co, IN, were married 19 Nov 1901 in Clark Co, WI. Her father’s name was Henry Henningsen; mother Mora (Mary) A. Replogle. Groom’s father’s name was Matthias Swihart; his mother’s name was Elizabeth Rothenberger. [FamilySearch.org. “Wisconsin, Marriages, 1836-1930” from FHL film #1275880]

1905: David and Bertha are residing in 4th Ward, Stanley, Chippewa, WI, with 1 daughter:

According to her obituary, Evelyn May Swihart was born 3 Jan 1905 in Stanley, WI. [Obituaries from Newspapers, v. 23, Jackson County Genealogy Library (JCGL) 979.527/V381/Obi v.23] [Probably from the Medford Oregon Mail Tribune]

According to her obituary, Opal Lenora Swihart was born 5 Mar 1908 in Stanley, WI.

1909: Swiharts move to Jackson County, Oregon from Stanley, Chippewa, WI

[Opal’s obituary: “Opal had been a resident of Oregon since the age of 1. Her family moved from Stanley to Jackson County, Oregon.”]

1908/9: “Dave Swihart built the first country store [in Derby] around 1908. It was situated on a meadow east of the Derby school. People traveling the dusty road would stop for groceries or have Dave measure them for ready made dresses and suits.” [Country Folk: Butte Falls, Derby, Dudley by Barbara Hegne, published by the author, 1989, p. 2]

21 January 1910, Medford Mail Tribune, page 3: “Born – On the 17th instant, to Mr. and Mrs. David Swihart, near Derby, a 12 ½ pound boy. The parents think that Southern Oregon is a good place for babies.” [http://oregonnews.uoregon.edu]

April 1910: David and Bertha are residing in Big Butte Precinct on Reese Creek Road:

I interpret this to mean that the infant son born 17 Jan 1910 died between January and April, although no record of the death was found. This is probably one of the two “infant sons” buried in the Butte Falls Cemetery to the left of Elizabeth and Matthias Swihart. (These are David’s parents, who did not come to Jackson County until after Elizabeth’s childbearing years had ended, so they are not Elizabeth’s. David’s brothers stayed in the Midwest, so they are not their children. My conclusion is that the only Swihart of the right age to have infants buried in Butte Falls is David’s wife, Bertha.
23 November 1910: “Swihart’s store” is referred to in newspaper:

“LOST. September 25, 1910, on the road from Swihart’s store to my home on Box creek, a Medford National bank purse, containing (I think) $19.05; I think I lost it at the Oak spring. Return to Mail Tribune office or notify Jasper W. Miller, Dudley, Or., and receive reward.” [Medford Mail Tribune, Medford, Or, November 23, 1910, image 7. [http://oregonnews.uoregon.edu]

23 June 1915, infant son dies: “PROSPECT NEWS. The funeral of Mr. And Mrs. Swihart’s infant son was held from their residence Wednesday. The babe was buried in Butte Falls Cemetery.” [Friday Morning, June 25, 1915, Medford Sun, v.4. JCGL 979.527/N298/Med/v.4]

I interpret this to be the second infant son. Additional confirmation is in Opal’s obituary, which states that “She was preceded in death by …two brothers in infancy…”

Circa 1916-1917: Fire burns Swihart store in Derby. “With the store business destroyed, Dave Swihart set up a mill, bought a team of Clydesdale’s for logging, then opened a commissary near the mill. Then, when World War II (sic) came along, many of his crew signed up for the Army, and he was out of business again.” [Country Folk: Butte Falls, Derby, Dudley, p. 2-3, reporting reminiscences by Evelyn (Swihart) Griffith in 1989]

1918: Swiharts move to Coos County: “…[Opal] had lived in Coos County since 1918, and completed her high school education in Bandon.” [Opal’s obituary]

Was this the end of Bertha (Henningsen) Swihart’s line? No, Bertha’s daughter Evelyn’s obituary states that Evelyn was survived by a son residing in White City, four grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.
Miss Tena Valentine was born in Carthage, Jasper County, Missouri, in 1882. In 1902, at the age of 20, she made the long train journey to visit her married older sister Emily Valentine (Mrs. Merit Smith) in Corinth, Saratoga County, New York. Soon after arrival, she met a local young man named John Wesley Sayre, and in no time she and John became engaged to be married.

Tena returned home to Carthage, but family lore passed down through the years indicated young John made extra money shooting pool, enabling him to pay for train transportation to Missouri several times to ease his smitten heart.

Leap forward 111 years. In August 2015 a fellow genealogist and researcher from Carthage, Missouri, discovered and sent me the following old newspaper clipping from the Carthage Evening Press dated April 28, 1904. It somewhat inaccurately tells the story of Tena’s upcoming wedding and certain friends who travelled there to participate in the festivities. (Concord and Albany are actually Corinth; Mr. Saye is Mr. Sayre, though he was never a jeweler, but what did anyone know?)

I could not help but feel that there was more to this story than that simple article from long ago. I dug through old family photographs and found a certain few with which I was familiar and had always enjoyed viewing. Although I had names written on the back, I did not know the circumstances attributed to the images.

Photos 1, 2, and 3 are dated May 1904, and were taken by Tena’s sister Emily in an upstairs bedroom of the Sayre Family home on Center Street in Corinth, NY. The occasion was a bachelorette party for Tena.

These photographs complimented further the sketchy newspaper article shown above.
John Wesley Sayre and Tena Valentine were wed May 4, 1904, and were to become my paternal grandparents. It took that obscure old newspaper clipping to further define the 111 year-old photos.
